MONROE, La., Dec. 20.-The naterday afternoon for Mer Rouge were mobilized on orders from the adjutant general's office at Baton Rouge but overnor John M. Parker and other state officials declined to say where they were being sent or for what purpuse. It generally was believed they were ordered to Morehouse parish in connection with the situation growing out of the kidnaping last August by booded men of live Mer Rouge cititong two of whom are still missing. Although the Ku Klux Klan organi-zamons of Louisianus, Arkausus and Mississippi have been charged in some quarters with being involved in the mysterious disappearance of Major Watt Daniels and Thomas Richards, citizens of Mer Rouge, many citizens northeast Louisiana believe that the case goes much degree than alleged Ku Klux animosity and is more the less racial, rivating in many repects the celebrated fends of the Cumberland mountains of Kentucky, Tomessee and Virginia.

Although the feudal fight was said to have been browing for a quarter of a century, involving some of the leading families of Morchouse parish, climax was, reached on August when the four families were kidnaped by 40 or 50 masked men.

Lard Carzon Serves Notice on Isme Pasha and His Fellow Conferent That There Must Be Immediate Ac ceptance or Rejection of Allies Plan

By Associated Press

LAUSANNE, Dec. 28 .-- On the eve of what threatened to be a critical day is the line of the Lausanne conference Ambassador Child last night had a long conversation with Isnet Pashs about the straits problem which Lord Curzon resterday declared must be disposed of immediately.

It has become known that American bservers at the conference believe that an international control commiftee associated with the League of Nations, as suggested in the Allied plan for supervision of the Darda-nelles is unnecessary. In other words American feeling means freedom of the straits should be an actual treedom granted by a treaty and that if should not be a freedom limited by an international commission.

The Allied leaders served notice hat the Turks must either accept or reject the Allied project for settlement of the straits question. Failure will hardly affect the other problems which the conference was called to solva.

"Let us go out," she said.

She led the way dewnstairs and, in the hall, picked up a cape; he threw it over her shealders and brought his overcoat and cap. But in his absorption he forgot to put them on until, as they went out into the garden to-gether, she reminded him; then he put on the cap. The night was clear and rook, and no one but themselves seemed to be about the house.

"Which way do you want to go?" Me turned toward the forested acres of the grounds which ran down to a ravine at the bottom of which a little stream trickled toward the lake. As they approached the side of this ravine, a man appeared and investigated them. He recognized the "It's all right, Willis," she said qui-

Roth had spoken so that the man above could not have heard; and Har-riet now noticed that, as her companion hurried ahead, he went almost noiselessly. She stood still, shivering a little now in the cold; and she lisa little now in the cold; and she listened, she no longer heard his footsteps. What she had done was done;
then just as she was telling herself that it must be many moments before she would know whether he was coming back, she heard him returning;
at some little distance, he spoke her name so as not to frighten her. She knew at once it was he, but a change in the tone surprised her. She stepped forward to meet him.

"You found your friend?"

"You found your friend?"
"Yes."
"What did be tell you? I mean what is wrong that you did not ex-

"Believe in you, Miss Santoine!"

"Believe in you, Miss Santoine"
Be crushed her fingers in his grasp.
"Oh, my God, I wish I could!"
""Yen wish you could?" she echoed.
The tone of it struck her like a blow, and she tore her hands away. "What de you mean by that?"
He made no rerly but stood staring at her through the dark. "We must go back," he said queerly. "You're cold."
